Dear Sir, Madam,

We would like to share with you the latest Open Access report of the Swiss Center for Islam and Society (SZIG/CSIS) “From Zakāt to Theological Anthropology: Systematic and Practical Approaches in Islamic-Theological Studies”. This publication emerged from an international conference held on 30/31 May 2022 in Zurich and presents the results of our doctoral programme on the establishment of Islamic-theological Studies in an European context. Based on a synthesis of seven doctoral projects it reflects on terminologies, disciplinary embeddings and understandings of theology and identifies discursivity, contextuality and communication as important characteristics of this emerging discipline.

Since we are increasingly publishing research results in English, we would like to refer colleagues from English-speaking countries to these publications once or twice a year in future. You are very welcome to forward this information and further interested parties can register here.

We are pleased to make a contribution to international and interdisciplinary networking in this way.

Hansjörg Schmid and Amir Dziri, directors of the SZIG/CSIS
